

Socialise

Socialising can also be beneficial to you, and meeting new people and exploring new places can be great fun and reduce boredom. This doesn't have to involve alcohol or smoking either. Alcohol and smoking should not be used to escape from worries or mental health concerns because although you may think it helps you forget your worries, it can actually do the opposite and negatively impact your mood.

Although it may feel relaxing, smoking actually increases stress on the body and the brain.

In surveys people who smoke report being less happy than those who do not – and people who stop smoking report that they feel happier afterwards.

Improve your mental health by looking to other, more positive, ways to take a break or to cope with stress.

TOP TIPS

to be smoke-free, HAPPIER
and achieve more

Live well

How you feel is influenced by your surroundings, so try to make your living space a smoke-free zone and somewhere you want to spend time. Put photos on your wall, make your room cosy and comforting. Managing your money is really important too, debt and financial difficulties are very stressful - a person who smokes a pack of 20 per day will save about £250 per month if they no longer smoke.

Support Network

It's important to know where to go for support for any mental health concerns. Whether you just want to talk to someone, or need help with a specific issue, there is always someone to offer support and advice. Friends and family are often your first contact. Try to be honest with them about what is going on, and share your problems with each other. If you feel you need extra support, find a local organisations that can help.

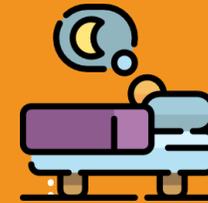

Good mood food

Eating five pieces of fruit or veg a day is not just good for your bodies but helps prevent you feeling sluggish and tired. For someone who has recently quit smoking, reaching for a healthy snack when feeling a craving for a cigarette is a useful distraction. Cravings usually only last about 5 mins, so having an apple, nuts or some grapes will help while the craving passes.

Exercise

Nicotine withdrawal can make you feel stressed, irritable and you might find it difficult to concentrate. Physical activity reduces these feelings, boosts self-esteem and improves sleep. It also releases a feel-good hormone called dopamine. Ok, so sweating it out at the gym every day may not be everyone's idea of fun, but walking more, dancing, yoga or gentle exercise can actually make you feel happier.

Get some sleep

Aim for about eight hours every night. Poor sleep may lead to mood disorders like depression and anxiety. Research with young adults also found that smoking is associated with poorer quality of sleep and not smoking can improve sleep issues. Going to bed the same time each night, avoiding caffeine in the evening and having some social media free time can help your brain relax before bed.
